OUR PAYROLL IS BIG

—and growing bigger.
—and every man on the payroll is striving to give you the first-class service—in freight and passenger or express traffic—that you have a right to expect from the foremost electric railway system in any city of Ogden's size in America—

THE OGDEN, LOGAN & IDAHO RAILWAY COMPANY.
P. D. KLINE - Gen'l Mgr.

INTERURBAN RAILROADS BIG FACTOR IN PAYROLL BUILDING

Development of the Ogden, Logan & Idaho electric railway system, with the extensions through the Ogden Valley to Huntsville and from Brigham to Preston, Idaho, have brought the company forward as one of the greatest payroll builders of the entire intermountain country. Hundreds of men are employed by the company on its cars, in its shops and car barns, on its railway line work, in its offices. Others will be added to the force when the through service between Ogden and Preston is established, within the next two weeks.

But it is not only with the development of these payrolls of employees or with the immense expenditure for construction work that the Ogden, Logan & Idaho electric railway system is upbuilding the intermountain country, and particularly that territory tributary to Ogden. By providing more direct means for shipping, by opening new ways for passenger traffic, the electric railway company is aiding materially in the development of both the farming and manufacturing industries of northern Utah. Huntsville, once without a railroad, is now directly linked with Ogden. The Ogden valley farmers as a result are turning to the cultivation of crops that they have never raised before, increasing the profits of that fertile agricultural community.

The same condition is true, to a considerable extent of the Cache valley, formerly served only by a branch railroad line but now directly linked with Ogden through the completion of the electric railway system. This extension has linked the producer with the markets of the state and will bring the more rapid development of the Cache valley, of Box Elder county and of Weber county, as well as that portion of southern Idaho tributary to Preston. Long hauls are to be obliterated, making the development of many agricultural lines more practicable.

P. D. Kline, general manager of the company, recently said: "The policy of the Ogden, Logan & Idaho is to give better service than the present conditions justify. The company is anxious to aid in the upbuilding of Ogden and every other city and town of northern Utah. It is a home company, financed by men of northern Utah and it employs home labor—hundreds of men. Patronage of the Ogden, Logan & Idaho electric railway system naturally means the further upbuilding of the electric lines, the further extension of its payrolls."
